

Electromagnetism - The Basis of Life- The Source of Health and Fitness!

All biological processes and in particular the metabolism of every single cell are substantially based on electromagnetic energy.

Only an organism which is sufficiently supplied with energy is able to control the self-regulating mechanisms and powers of regeneration and healing.

A body sufficiently supplied with energy is able to resist diseases and will be healthy and fit. Due to the way we live in our “civilized” society we suffer from permanent lack of energy. We build up too little energy due to the consumption of denatured food and lack of exercise. At the same time we use up more energy than in former times due to stress and increasing pollution.

The consequences of this unfavorable energy balance are the decline in performance, premature aging, chronic diseases and higher susceptibility to diseases.

Thanks to Curatron 2000HT electromagnetic energy regulation it is now possible to compensate for these energy deficits in a natural way by means of specific electromagnetic impulses. Metabolism is boosted, the body produces more energy, impaired regulatory circuits work properly again and the body’s self-healing powers are activated. With the help of the Curatron 2000HT every person can reach its personal optimum state of health, fitness and improve dramatically the quality of life!

Electromagnetic processes in the body.

The cell is the fundamental structural unit of all living organisms. The human body consists of approximately 70 to 100 trillion of various specialized cells which are coordinated in cell groups, tissue and organs which interact harmoniously.

Every thought, every nerve impulse, the effects of hormones all depend on the ability of the cells to perform optimally and to communicate efficiently.

If the cell is healthy, the body is healthy! In order that the cells are able to fulfill their tasks they need energy, which they produce with the help of the metabolism of the body. For this the cells need nutrients and oxygen. The resorption of these products and the disposal of waste products is controlled by electromagnetic energy. Only the optimum electromagnetic regulation and coordination of all these functions makes life possible in the first place. If there is a lack of energy in the cells their functions are impaired. If this state persists cell damage occurs. Subsequently the organs and glands are weakened and the organism is thrown out of balance.

The body feels exhausted, ages early and diseases strike!

Balanced and optimal pulsating electromagnetic energy applied by the Curatron 2000HT activates the metabolism and improves the energy balance resulting in improvement of health and fitness and thus dramatically improving the quality of life!

Curatron system description

The Curatron 2000HT system consists of a control unit and a large application mattress and a therapy pad for local application. The control unit produces electromagnetic impulses around the mattress in precise doses.

The system has a built-in computer with 10 Master-programs, which are each divided in a series of Sub-programs. All the parameters of the applied electromagnetic fields (intensity, frequency and time) are fully controlled by the computer and guarantee the best possible use of the system.

Curatron 2000HT in use

Electromagnetic application is an ideal way of actively maintaining health and fitness. It can get you closer to realizing everyone's dream of living to an old age in an optimal stage of health and fitness. No matter whether your work is physically or mentally demanding, if you are actively engaging in sports or not doing much exercise, if you are young or old, healthy or not, by applying the Curatron system anyone is able to experience faster regeneration. This means increased fitness and enjoying life better.

Even after years of chronic disease, positive results in the form of improved health and recovery can often be seen. In this regard one has to differentiate between illnesses in which the symptoms may disappear completely and those in which the symptoms, such as chronic pain, can be alleviated even over longer periods of time. The improvement of health depends on the general metabolic state, on age and the body's capabilities for regeneration and the way of life. There are many scientific studies on the degree of effectiveness of pulsating electromagnetic fields. It was found that disturbances in blood circulation and in metabolism play a key role in the development of diseases. These are also reasons why electromagnetic energizing of the body can be used for such a wide range of disturbances.

After the body has been restored to the optimal health the Curatron helps to preserve a state of fitness and physical robustness.

Behind electromagnetic fields

A body, which is full of energy, is healthy and fit. Pulsed ElectroMagnetic Therapy (PEMF) is based on more than 30 years of worldwide research carried out by renowned scientists. Many years of practical experience by thousands of physicians and natural health doctors with PEMF throughout Europe and on other continents, as well as the scientific findings of renowned institutes and associations.

The Curatron 2000HT applies the most recent research findings in the field of pulsed magnetic fields. It is accepted as one of the best methods available, without side effects, to energetically strengthen the body in a natural way. The specific Curatron computer controlled parameters leads to optimal energy regulating and health enhancing effects.

These positive factors cause a normalization of membrane potential and improved metabolism, thus supplying to the cells an optimum amount of energy, which increases the general fitness and capacity and strengthen the body's powers for self-healing.

Via various control mechanisms the protein synthesis is increased (improved regeneration) the ways the body disposes of waste materials is stimulated and the natural immune system is activated. In the course of continuous use of this system over several months, the energy level improves, health is stabilized and fitness increases. It is an ideal way to maintain your own good health!
